Background

Instant Money™ is Standard Bank's prepaid money platform which facilitates the sending of money without the need for either the sender or recipient to have a bank account.

This offering was launched in 2010 in conjunction with Spar supermarkets and has now been expanded to include approximately 50 000 access points nationally including Standard Bank ATMs, spaza shops and major retailers. These access points are typically situated in urban, rural and township locations across South Africa where Standard Bank has facilitated selected banking services in the merchant environment.

A customer purchases an Instant Money voucher at any of our distribution points. The voucher is issued against a set of credentials:

- A 10-digit voucher number
- A secret voucher release PIN (that the sender selects)

This voucher can then be redeemed at any of our access points by anyone in possession of the credentials of the voucher. The credentials are SMSed to the intended recipient of the voucher, selected by the sender.

Instant Money™ Bulk Payments

In addition to expanding the Instant Money distribution network, Standard Bank clients can purchase Instant Money™ vouchers directly via a Standard Bank account.

We have developed an interface that will allow you to purchase multiple vouchers at a single point in time and have these reflect as debits off your bank account.

The interface is web-based and, to improve usability, it allows to import large amounts of data from spreadsheets containing the recipients' name and cellphone number into our system. Payments can also be scheduled to run at specific dates and times. In addition, there are built-in user authorisation levels and limits to further enhance security.

Instant Money™ Bulk Payments is ideally suited for those businesses such as yours that need to remit money to receivers who are typically not in possession of bank accounts and countless other user cases which are shown below.
